between life and death. His last words were a wish that he might have lived to see the completion of the national memorial to Abraham Lincoln, who was his personal friend.

Shelby Moore Cullom's death ended fifty years of continuous public service that had made him a figure in American national life and brought him into official relations with every president from Abraham Lincoln to Woodrow Wilson. President Taft once said of him:

"Why, here's my old friend Uncle Shelby; he comes nearer connecting the present with the days of Wash-

LABOR LEADERS ARE
DEPORTED QUIETLYSecrecy With Which Deportation
Took Place, Reveals Little Knowledge of the Occurrence.

Capetown, S. A., Jan. 28.—The deportation of South African labor leaders was carried out so quietly last night that little was known of the occurrence today.

The men who had a prominent part in the recent strike arrived in Capetown under a strong guard. At midnight they were placed on board the steamer Ougeni which sailed immediately for England.

The secret deportation by the South African Government of the strike leaders has aroused widespread com- ment in England.

Court Proceedings.
Pretoria, U. S. A., Jan. 28.—Court proceedings against the ministers of justice, defense and the interior be- gan today.

The supreme court judge, Sir John W. Vessell, granted an application for leave to appeal to attack the three ministers for contempt of court. The judge declared that if he had yesterday possessed the information he now had he would have granted an in- junction restraining the government from deporting the ministers.

Demand His Recall.
Glasgow, Jan. 28.—The annual Scot- tish labor conference sitting here to- day passed a peremptory resolution demanding the recall of the government minister Viscount Gladstone, be- cause of the deportation of labor leaders at Capetown. The resolutions strongly condemn the government of the Union of South Africa for its action.

Heated Speeches were delivered in which denunciations were expressed of the "violation of the most elemen- tary right of British citizenship" by General Louis Botha, the premier of South Africa.

MacDonald's Statement.
James Ramsay MacDonald, a social- ist and labor member of parliament, described the South African govern- ment's action as a "very cynical con- cession to the South African war."

Another comment loudly applauded was "it is a worse scandal than that of Chinese labor," referring to the South African government's order by which Chinese laborers were brought to South Africa under contract at low wages to work in the mines, but which was later repealed.

MILITARY METHODS
CHANGE WITH YEARSBattle of Future Will Be in Air and Under Water, Says Famous General—Spy System Abandoned.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Jan. 28.—The military spy, as far as the United States is concerned, has been relegated to the discard by the treasury department, the secret agents and investi- gators employed by the Department of Justice and the Postoffice and State Departments, and men of the War Department, and no more writ- ten about in song and story, is a relic of the past, according to officials of this branch of the government.

This fact, which undoubtedly will prove disconcerting to the novelists and romancers who have written esti- mates of the War Department re- cently published for 1914, failed to carry an appropriation for "military spies." Battle scarred war generals and majors, upon being questioned re- garding this "military spy" matter, days ago, furnished the further inter- esting fact that during 1913 not a single "military spy" was employed as such.

In discussing the passing of the military spy, one of the "desk gen- erals" at the War Department—a sol- dier, by the way, who has seen his share of active service dodging bul- lets—was led to the observation that "times ain't what they used to be" in matters pertaining to the science of war. He pointed out the fact that the next war between two world powers will find no small amount of fighting both high in the air and under the ocean's surface, by virtue of the per- fection of the aeroplane and dirigible, and the submarine.

"The battlefield of the future," said the old war dog, "whose feats are known to everyone who has read late histories of the United States," will present a vastly different scene from what it did ten, or even five years ago. The famous, kicking, army mule has gone the way of the "military spy."

The automobile truck has just about pushed him off the war map. The comparatively recent but cumber- some wires and paraphernalia of the signal corps has been partially dis- placed by wireless telegraphy and telephone. And they are occa- sionally, the bayonet and sabre, sup- planted by the long range guns, just as the old methods of grappling two wooden ships side by side follow- ing each other in a hand-to-hand fight- ing, has entirely been done away with through perfection of fighting ships of steel and guns "that carry seven miles."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—Young Men's Christian associations and Amateur Athletic unions need not pay the annual license fee for conducting a boxing contest. This opinion was given by Attorney General Walter C. Owen to State Treasurer Henry John- son today.

"Upon it being made to appear to the satisfaction of the boxing com- mission that it is the purpose of the organization applying for a license to conduct boxing exhibitions under the auspices of the Amateur Ath- letic Union or the Young Men's Chris- tian Association," says the attorney general, "a license should be issued by the commission to such organiza- tion upon its complying with the law in other respects to conduct boxing exhibitions under the auspices of either of the two organizations mentioned, without the payment by the applicant of the annual license fee."

WOMEN TRY TO RAID
ASQUITH RESIDENCEParty of Militant Suffragettes Attempt to Break Into Cabinet Session
But Are Arrested.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 28.—Militant suffra- gettes today made a bold attempt to break into a meeting of the British cabinet council sitting at the official residence of Premier Asquith in Down- ing street.

An automobile belonging to the Wo- man's Social Political Union, with a woman chauffeur at the wheel and filled with suffragettes, dashed from Whitehall into Downing street before the line of police stationed outside the Asquith residence, realized what was going on. When the driver refused to obey the order of the police inspector on duty to retire from the street, the entire party was placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters at Scotland Yard.

The women's automobile was deco- rated with placards protesting against the forcible entry of suffragette pri- soners and demanding that the cabinet cease the "torture of women in Eng- lish jails."

The unexpected raid caused great excitement and a huge crowd soon gathered.

The women were later arraigned at Bow street where three of them re- fused to give their names and were en- tered in the charge books under num- bers. One of the women, who had acted as driver, said she was Miss Virtue and was the private secretary of a "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, a prominent suffragette.

Miss Virtue is said to be engaged to marry a Mountaineer, and the women have obtained the vote in Great Britain. Each of the suffra- gettes made a short speech in court about the ill-treatment of women in prison, the wearing of two over- coats to be of good behaviour for six months.

POOR ATTEMPT MADE
TO HOLD UP TRAINFour Men Board Train at Belaire, Ohio, This Morning, But Are Frightened By Passengers.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 28.—An at- tempt to rob Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 105 was frus- trated near here this morning by passengers. Four men boarded the train at Belaire, Ohio, and when near Zanesville, Ohio, they de- manded money from the other passengers. Persons in the car went to the woman's assistance in such numbers that one robber was cap- tured. The other three jumped the train. At the police station the man gave his name as Harry Warner, but refused to tell anything else about himself.

ONE MAN ARRESTED.
Zanesville, O., Jan. 28.—Harry War- ner, who says his home is in Sales- ville, Gurnsey county, jumped off Bal- timore and Ohio passenger train No. 105 this morning wearing two over- coats and carrying a woman's hand bag in which was a man's gold watch. He was arrested. Warner is in the city prison pending an investigation. He says he had no accomplices.

Official Story.
Pittsburgh, O., Jan. 28.—The fol- lowing statement concerning the robbery of passengers on a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train at Zanesville, Ohio, was given out at the Pittsburgh office of the company at noon:

"Early this morning six men board- ed train 105 at Cambridge, Ohio, each holding a ticket to Zanesville, and started robbing the passengers. A purse containing a watch and $7 was taken from Mrs. Karmister of Karns City, Pa., and an overcoat, watch and $40 from W. J. Robinson, another pas- senger.

The conductor detected the men and captured Harry Warner who was placed under arrest in Zanesville. The other five men escaped. When search- ed Warner had in his possession the articles taken from Mrs. Karmister and Mr. Robinson."

Boston, Jan. 28.—The Yankee is being ousted from the farms of New England by settlers of foreign blood, according to the state board of agri- culture's annual report, issued today.

"We have seen the Polish people take possession of the Connecticut valley within the past few years and in certain of our hill towns Jews and Canadians are taking up the land and making a living where our older citi- zens have failed. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 28.—Gen. Fran- cisco Villa arrived from Chihuahua to- day. He will confer for several days with representatives of mining and smelter interests regarding the resump- tion of business in the rebel terri- tory. He then will return to Chi- huahua, which he calls the provisional capital of the republic, to direct the attacks on Torreon.

With Gen. Villa were Paul Madero brother of the late president, and sev- eral members of the rich Terrazas family, who had been in Chihuahua since its evacuation by Gen. Merca- do's federal army. Most of the Ter- razas had remained to protect such personal property as had not been confiscated by the rebels. Louis Ter- razas, Jr., was still being held in Chi- huahua on orders of Gen. Villa.

Gen. Villa's presence here will further delay the attack on the fed- eral at Torreon. Most of the rebel troops have been sent southward from Chihuahua in readiness for the at- tack, which Gen. Villa proposes to di- rect their movements in person.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Jan. 28.—The last step of the prosecution of the members of the notorious "Mabry" swindle syndicate, whose operations in Council Bluffs and elsewhere a few years ago cost its victims a million dollars, was taken in the United States court here today when Judge Smith McPherson ordered all the re- maining cases stricken from the docket.

Of the eighty-four persons against whom indictments were returned in the case, fifty-four were convicted and sentenced, four charged, four be- came state witnesses, several there- fore being brought to trial, the iden- tity of six was not fully established and in one case the jury disagreed.

Of the remaining eight who were not tried, six were discharged, and the evidence against the others was not considered conclusive partly be- cause of the death or removal of witnesses.

Selling More
"Hellos"Have you followed the interesting advertising campaigns the telephone companies have been carrying on?

It is to many a novel idea to use newspaper space to sell "Hellos" but it has been a big success in the cities where it has been tried.

The telephone has ceased to be a luxury and has become a necessity—another case of a worthy article being sold by ad- vertising.

If newspaper advertising will sell such an intangible thing as a "Hello" (in this case another name for service) what will it not do?

Given a worthy cause to preach, advertising will move mountains.

The "linked word" sent fly- ing by the great whizzing news- paper presses is going to be a mighty factor in the world's work in this great year 1914.

SHIP BEING RUSHED

try to Protect Americans.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 28.—Under forced draft the big battleship South Caro- lina today is rushing across the Wind- ward Passage for Port-au-Prince, Haiti, to join her blue jackets and marines with the force of the armed cruiser fleet for the protection of Americans and other foreigners. Left without a government by the sud- den abdication of President Oreste, who fled to refuge on a German war- cruiser, Haiti is not because the re- public is threatened with anarchy.

Capt. Russell of the South Carolina will be the senior naval officer on the scene and as such, will take whatever measures he deems necessary for the protection of foreigners and their property without awaiting orders from Washington. Secretary Daniels has sent him no instructions, depend- ing on the situation to act in his own discretion.

The South Carolina left Guanta- namo late yesterday on receipt of the order of the flight of the Haitian president. The ship crossed the Windward Passage and down the Caribbean to Port-au-Prince will be ended today.

French Cruiser Stationed.
Paris, Jan. 28.—The French cruiser Conde, now in Mexican waters, was today placed at the disposal of the French consul at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, for the protection of French interests and the flight of Michael Oreste, is regarded as serious. Are on Guard.
Port-au-Prince, Jan. 28.—Detach- ments of American sailors from the armored cruiser Montana today were on guard at the American legation, the cable station and the French hospital. German bluejackets and marines were placed on protection at the oth- er legations and at the German stores in the city. Large land- ing parties were sent ashore from the American and German war vessels yesterday when President Michael Oreste fled for refuge to the German cruiser Vineta after fighting broke out in the streets.

Fusillades continued in all quarters of the city throughout the night and there were numerous attempts at pil- lage of shops and stores, but these were quickly suppressed and the city is now quiet.

A citizens' committee of public safety has been formed. It is under- stood that Solon Menos, former Haitian minister to Washington, has been selected for chairman of the commit- tee.

President Michael Oreste, and his wife remained all night about the Venita in the harbor.

Trade.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—Informal overtures were made today by a group of Russians to the ministry of finance with a view to obtaining a charter for a Russo-American bank intended to promote trade between Russia and the United States. The applicants said they were acting in concert with large American banking interests.

The reply given was to the effect that the ministry on the matter could be entertained until securities representing half the amount of the capital of the proposed bank—$250,000 had been deposited either in St. Petersburg or in New York.

The intention is to preclude the risk of negotiations being opened with mere concession hunters. It is no- w implied the readiness of the ministry of finance to grant the charter demanded.

Claims Farmers Are Indifferent to Value of Their Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—Indiffer- ence as to the value of their work costs farmers thousands according to Charles K. Graham, director of agri- culture at Hampton Institute, Vir- ginia, before the farmers' course here today. Of the four classes—profes- sional men, business men, mechanics and farmers—was said that through actual knowledge of his own affairs the farmer has allowed to become "probably the most abused and, in many cases, the least appreciated."

"People are usually taken at their own valuation," he said. "This natu- rally accounts for the difference in pay of hundreds of dollars per hour demanded by the professional man and that of the farmer, who more of- ten than not considers an hour's or even a day's time worth nothing."

He cited instances where the time lost in trying to repair an old tool or machine was worth more than the cost of a new and much more efficient article.

VAN HISE COMMENDS
JOYS OF FARM LIFEUniversity President Speaks at Opening Session of Country Life Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—President Charles R. Van Hise opened the fourth Wisconsin Country Life Conference here this morning with an address in which he lauded rural life. With the telephone, automobile, good roads, rural mail, schoolhouses and social cen- ters, Van Hise said, a good reading in country homes he concluded that it is now possible to have the "joy of living" on the farm.

"While much remains to be done in advancing the prosperity of the farmer both through increasing his output and in getting a larger part of the sum which the consumer pays," he said, "his great problem is now that of living. It is not because the farmer boy is not prosperous that he goes to the city; it is because rural life in the United States often has been so barren of joy as compared with the city. And indeed in pion- eer days, when the farmer's life was very poor, when roads were impassable for much of the year, when the only means of communication and trans- portation were the horse and the ox, when the postoffice was a once a week off, when it was difficult to obtain commodities from the city, the life of the farmer on the social side was a better one. But the changes in the conditions within the past quarter century have removed most of these hindrances."

The first day's program was devoted to the subject of the rural school. W. E. Larson, state inspector of rural schools, gave the roll of honor of Wisconsin one-room schools. Prof. K. L. Hatch defended the small rural school and the subject of the ex- periences in country schools were given by Miss Carrie Pump and the class of boys, Redburn township; Miss Bernice Jones, Green Lake rural school, and Miss Grace Wyman, Mendota Beach (near Madison) school.

Prof. H. H. Taylor and R. A. Moore talked on country life and agri- cultural topics.

Prominent speakers this afternoon were E. M. Phillips, commissioner of Minnesota, and after lunch on that subject, experience; State Superin- tendent C. P. Cary on the Wisconsin farmer and his schools; A. J. Lovejoy and Clifford Burns on the Harlem, Illinois, consolidated school. Prof. H. V. Van Hise, United States specialist in education, will give an address on "The Schools That Made Denmark Fa- mous."

The dairy school is putting on a demonstration of its community hand- dry, which is exciting much interest.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Former President William Howard Taft left early today for Canada after urging upon the Yale Alumni Association her last night that the younger generation should be carefully train- ed in political first principles.

"I don't like to be regarded as an old fogey," he said, and I don't think I am. We are in a transition period which in many respects presents a new and different set of problems. We are in the aftermath of a struggle in which we have escaped a plutocracy. We also have made a great transition and the people are asked to make such transitions. How- ever, we give rise to an excess of cranks and crankism, and they always suggest things which are dan- gerous."

We should see that the coming gen- eration does not lightly give up what centuries have given to us of sound political principles."

Sport Snap Shots

BY MORRIS MILLER

Jimmy Burke, whose title is something like assistant manager of the Tigers and whose functions include sub-managing, coaching, training and a little scouting on the side, has played ball in more different leagues than any other player before the baseball public today. It has been said that he has played in all the leagues except those 20,000 under the sea, but of course that's only a joke. Since 1895 he has been active in the game and he has been a manager so often that a list of the teams would sound like a geographical report. He is only thirty-nine years old and might spry at that for his age in the game. He has played third throughout his long experience, except once for a period of two weeks. He began playing in the Illinois league, a circuit that lasted all of two weeks. He played later in the American association with Milwaukee, with Rochester in the Eastern league, and then returned to Milwaukee. The season following he joined the White Sox. He went to Pittsburgh shortly after, however, not caring much for the American league, and played in the National till 1905, when he was third-basing for the St. Louis Cardinals. In 1906 he went to Kansas City of the A. A., which crew he managed two years, and then went to Louisville to try and land a permanent job. He went to Indianapolis as a private, but this time still playing third. The following season he managed Fort Wayne of the Central league and then returned to Indianapolis in 1911. He stayed there till May of 1912, when he gave up the game to get a job and took up his present job with the Tigers. Burke has a great rep as a developer of young players and is a valuable person on the Detroit payroll.

When Mike Gibbons weighed in for the McAllister bout he declares that he had led in his shoes, which same he did that he might fool Jackey McFarland and lure him into a bout. Mike says that when his weight was announced at the McAllister bout it was said to be 155½, whereas as a matter of fact it was nearer 145. The articles for the McFarland fight were practically closed up on the afternoon of the McAllister fight, as Packey is said to have been convinced from the report of Gibbons' weight that Mike would never be able to make 145 at 4 in the afternoon without weakening himself. In this may provide popular speculation, but Mike declares that he will stake any bet at any time that he can make 148 pounds stripped under any circumstances. Mike and Packey should surely put up a rip-roaring battle and after having this latest one slipped over on him, Packey will be the more eager to avenge himself.

Rumor goes on to tell that the Feds have offered Ownie Bush, the Tiger shortstop, a contract of $35,000 for three years and the first year's salary in advance. What a quite a strain on the revenge credulity.

PENMAKERS CONTINUE BOWLING VICTORIES

Gazette Editorial Staff Meet in Farical Match for Supremacy at Alleys.

Rolling a consistent seven hundred game the Parker Pen bowlers added another scalp to their victory belt last night when they defeated the A. B. Giants by 235 pins. The Giants failed to roll a seven hundred game and were distanced in every round. Nehr of the Lucky Curve representatives, was high man with 181, which set his team's score up to 779 in one game, the highest of the contest.

Everything from an example of Christy Mathewson's delivery in throwing his famous fade-away when Baker was up to bat in the world series to how the holding a beam from falling down and how the proper way to gutter a ball was exhibited in the contest between the scribes of the Gazette in their near-bowling contest before the Parker Pen match. The knights of the pen gave an excellent exhibition of how not to bowl and strikes were as rare as funds on Friday, and the pin ball had no trouble in keeping up with the newspaper men in setting up, for it was seldom they were forced to exert themselves.

Hayes of the copy-chasers proved able to carry the burden of his weaker team-mates and pulled through with high score of 185, and an average of 177.23. The Scoops beat out their office rivals in the first round, due to a low score of 23, but in the next two periods were snowed under. The losers were burglarized out of a steak supper.

CRACK "WALKERS" MEET FOR NEW YORK CONTEST

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.
New York, Jan. 28.—All the crack walkers of the metropolitan district were entered in tonight's two-mile handicap walk to be held under the auspices of the Millrose Athletic Association at Madison Square Garden. Among the starters are Elick Gardner, who won the Amateur Athletic Union championship of the Garden last year in 14 minutes 32.3 seconds; Eddie Renz, Mohawk A. C., who won the three mile A. A. U. championship in 23:19.15; Fred Kaiser, N. Y. A. C., who won the three mile A. U. championship at Chicago in 23:19.15; and the seven mile A. A. U. championship on November 1. Some of the best field and track men in the Metropolitan district also are entered in the other events which will be run off tonight.

HIGHS TRIM SCRUBS IN WALKAWAY TILT

Strickney Proves Himself a Player of Unusual Ability.—Stewart is Absent from Practice.

The scrubs were woefully defeated yesterday afternoon at the high school gym, by their superiors, the varsity five, the score standing more than 3 to 1 in majority at the close against them. Strickney, who took Stewart's place at forward, played sensational throughout, securing at least six baskets during the melee. Stewart was not in a suit, a cold warning him to wait a few nights to recover sufficiently enough to warrant him taking a safe chance at scrimmage.

Ran showed up well at guard. He is losing a little weight, which is slowing him down, but he is in tip-top condition. Captain Hemming played at his best last night. His individual score was not kept track of, for it would require a good scorer to handle the game.

Atwood gave an exhibition of dribbling, which is rare to be seen anywhere. Badger played guard against him, and even though his work was of a high standard, he could not stop the mighty forward in his determination to cage a goal.

Last and not least, is Dalton at guard. His being shifted from forward to guard, and either Strickney or Stewart at the close against them. Strickney, who took Stewart's place at forward, played sensational throughout, securing at least six baskets during the melee.

WISCONSIN RESERVES PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Strong Madison Aggregation to Meet Cardinals at Rink.—Maroons Play Monroe Thursday.

Basketball fans will be given an opportunity to see one of the best teams in the state in action against the Janesville Cardinals, when the crack Madison Reserves, who trimmed the Cards a year ago in a handy fashion, appear on Saturday night at the rink. The Madison team is composed of university players, who are not fast enough to make the championship variety five and who practice against the Badger team in preparing them for the conference games. The team last year gave one of the best exhibitions of modern basketball ever seen at the rink floor, and this year's team is declared to be as strong as the 1912 five.

Knowing the calibre of their opponents, the Cardinals have secured the fastest players in southern Wisconsin in an attempt to take the "Reserves" measure and they promise to make an interesting game for the visitors. The Chaffry brothers of Beloit are named for two of the positions, and Cunningham, Falter and several college players will compose the Janesville team.

On Thursday night the Maroons, who defeated the fast Palmyra five, will journey to Monroe, to clash with the Cardinals of that city. The last time these teams met, the Janesville bunch gave the Monroe troupe a trimming on their own floor, and the Maroons are expecting a hard fight. The Maroon players are as follows: Falter, center; Brown and Blunk, guards; Cook and Wilson, forwards.

AMUSEMENTS THE APOLLO CLUB'S NEXT ENTERTAINMENT

Gwent Welsh Male Singers at Myers Theatre on February Ninth.

One of the most important musical events in Janesville for the season will be the appearance of the Gwent Welsh Male Singers, which constitutes a chorus of sixteen voices. This big musical event will be given under the auspices of the Apollo club at the Myers theatre, Feb. 9th, and will be a measure, complimentary, as the public will be invited and will be given an opportunity to attend for a nominal sum. This is one of the high-priced attractions but the Apollo club members wanted their friends to see a class of music furnished by the Apollo club to its members, hence the above.

The miners of Wales have repeatedly astonished us with their beautiful voices, and it seems as if work under ground were to be recommended as part of a singer's training. To look at the sixteen sturdy members of the Gwent Welsh Male Singers, one cannot help but admire their physiques and realize that active exercise has given them lungs capable of putting vigor into the big notes. It is more difficult to account for the gentler tones, unless it be that the solitude of the mine shafts and a sense here of peril develops a gentle, even melancholy, side to their natures. "It gets pretty lonely down below," said one of the miner members, when asked about this the other day. "You can't realize what it is unless you've been down and worked in the joint. Then there comes the song of hammer on drill in even rhythm on our ears. Maybe this gives us our first sense of time and melody, for it is easy to follow it, but at all of us just seem to sing naturally and back home everyone takes it as a matter of course."

Music lovers both in Europe and in America have been delighted by this aggregation of singers, who are now making their second American tour with the famous George El Davies as their conductor. The choruses rendered include "The Soldier's Chorus" from "Faust" and Kathleen Mayvreen. The program consists of fifteen selections and encores.

ment question, the witnesses including the municipal judge, district attorney, and sheriff, patrolmen and city detectives, the city attorney, chief of police, and the mayor. Concerning the latter official, and singling out none in particular, the senator says: "Of course we have been questioned as to what he has done and the orders he has given to officers to enforce the laws, and in cases where they have not been enforced and he has made attempt to enforce them, or cause officers to do their duty, some questions having a very direct bearing upon his oath of office and in some cases even the city ordinances and the express direction of the council to enforce the law, under his oath, and when he has admitted that he did not, to ask him what laws he would suggest should be enacted to compel him to do his duty. This answer is required, because this committee is required to answer this question, as one of the duties imposed upon the committee is to 'fully investigate... the causes of the non-enforcement of law in such cases.' Some of the press consider the asking of those questions of officers as impertinent, but of whom should we seek the answer to that question?"

"The committee has aimed to get before it every interest and element in any manner connected with the subject of this investigation, and to get at the facts, and all the facts, independent of any interest that is profiting or may profit by the continuance of this trouble. The committee sent out over 1,200 inquiries, before beginning the public hearings, that we might get the confidential side of the matter without publicity, and the city which is every anxious at this time to get any constructive criticism that will be fair to every person in the state and not shield officers in further failing to do their sworn duty."

"In this case the committee secured from the beginning J. B. He had been in charge in like work for the presidents of the United States and is now at the head of this work in the nation. We have aimed to get the facts and we think that we have in the very best way, but shall greatly appreciate constructive suggestions."

Satisfaction—for a sturdy man—can come from real tobacco only. Insipid mixtures don't appeal to a man with real tobacco hunger.

STANDARD is pure Kentucky leaf, with the "body" for a real smoke; yet rich and pleasing. It takes three to five years to age the tobacco in STANDARD; the process can't be hurried. That's the reason STANDARD is so ripe and mellow.

STANDARD will "make good" the very first time you smoke it. But if you want to prove that STANDARD satisfaction isn't a "flash in the pan" give STANDARD a week's trial. Then you'll know that STANDARD always satisfies, and you'll always keep on using it.

THE PAYROLL

"What is the matter with this country?" Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce, has asked Congress for an appropriation of four hundred thousand dollars in order to ascertain what is the matter with the country. The only thing that ails this country is contraction of the payroll.

The cause of the contraction is the continued irritation of business by the government. Just now one fourth of the wage-earners in America are not drawing wages, because they are not at work.

When you attack men who maintain pay-rolls, you hit the wage-earners, kick his wife, and cuff his children.

The government action against the United Shoe Machinery company was followed by the discharge of fifteen hundred employees.

The action against the Eastman Kodak company was followed by the laying off of several thousand hands.

Every government action against a corporation tends to destroy enterprise and puncture pay envelopes.

Laws coercing railroads and the withholding of a small necessary advance in rates, have been followed by a cancellation of orders for steel, from New York to San Francisco.

These cancellations, and the action of the government against the United States Steel Corporation, probably threw two hundred thousand men out of work. Keep up this prosecution and persecution of men who set other men to work at profitable employment and there will be no business left.

And if there is no business there will then be no government, because government exists only on what the world of workers produces.

The last number of the Philistine thus discusses the question of "What's the matter with business?" and the analysis of the situation will be endorsed by conservative thinking people.

Mr. Hubbard employs five hundred people in the Roycroft shops at East Aurora. He is in close touch with the business interests of the country and is in position to render an unbiased opinion.

That business has been hampered by over-regulation, as well as by burdensome taxation, is self-apparent, and that the payroll is most vitally interested is not difficult to understand.

What the business of the country needs at the present time is letting alone. There is plenty of money and a disposition to use it in the development of trade, but much of it will continue to be idle, if present conditions continue, and idle money always means idle men.

The era of prosecution is largely an era of persecution and the mills of so-called justice are busier just now than the mills of industry. The president can well afford to devote a little time to Mexico and give business a rest.

HIGHER TAXES

The Wisconsin Retail Merchants' Advocate, in a recent issue, takes up the question of higher taxes. It lays all the blame of the increase of the tax levies upon the reform legislatures and reform state administration of the past decade and discusses the "Wisconsin Idea" as one of the reasons for the various experiments that have proven costly to the residents of Wisconsin. It then pays its compliments to Governor McGovern and his proposed market commission for the purpose of enabling producers and consumers to deal directly with each other and thus eliminate the middle man. In discussing this question it says:

"The governor, we think, has never been a producer of any thing that was necessary for the sustenance of any consumer, and he is far less of a consumer than the average middleman, consequently and logically he must come under the characterization of a middleman of some sort, and as it is with the governor so it is with most men."

"Of course the governor centers his attack on distributors of farm products particularly and he wants Mrs. Jones in Milwaukee to buy her butter, eggs and poultry from Mr. Brown in Clark county, through some tax increasing contrivance through a commission that would be but another 'Wisconsin Idea' middleman for taxpayers to maintain, in lieu of the present system of middlemen, that costs no one anything except those who desire to purchase the service he renders."

"It will require some costly means to assemble the produce of Wisconsin and lay it down at the consumer's door in the few cities that would furnish a market for farmers and whatever instrumentality the governor may be able to evolve, establish and maintain through a market commission, it must necessarily perform the functions of the present middlemen, consequently would be a middleman service of some type."

"If through a market commission, state money is appropriated to further the plan, and the service of state employees devoted to promoting it, and co-operative markets made rent and tax free, the small proportion of the people in a few large cities who would patronize such subsidized institutions, might be gainers, but as water finds its level, so would somebody be taxed to pay the cost the state sustained in serving some of the people at state expense."

"If the governor succeeds in launching his market plan or if he soars beyond the sphere of Wisconsin state politics, will others imbued with the 'Wisconsin Idea' be content to go no farther, or will the next cry on the hustings be 'co-operative buying and co-operative selling organizations in regard to things produced by others than farmers?'"

"If it is good policy to spend state money, gathered from over-taxed citizens to aid some people in procuring vegetables at a lower cost to them, why should the state not come to the relief of the same or all the people and assist them to reduce their expenses in all directions? Who can tell what the 'Wisconsin Idea' will bring in the future?"

"One candidate mentioned for governor to succeed the present incumbent is quoted by the newspapers as having said: 'Any person who sells an article at a price in excess of what he paid for it, without having added value to it, is a parasite. Who in business could escape coming under that characterization?'"

"This gives us the measure of the type of would-be and perhaps will be state officers, unless those who are made to pay the fiddler wake up."

"A prominent Wisconsin advertiser says in his advertisement, 'Read the top line again.' We say read the caption under which this article appears again."

SOME CORN.

"Walter Lee Dunson, of Alabama, one of the many boys who last year took part in corn-raising contests, broke the record with a yield of 232.7 bushels on one acre, at a cost of only 19.9 cents per bushel. The best previous record was that of Jerry Moore of South Carolina, who raised 228.75 bushels on an acre at a cost of 42 cents per bushel. The second best record last year was 214.9 bushels, at a cost of 21.4 cents per bushel, by J. Jones Polk, of Mississippi; the third best, 190.4 bushels at 32.25 cents per bushel, by J. Ray Cameron, Kinston, North Carolina."

"Evidently northern corn club boys will have to 'go some' if they are ever to wrest the championship from the southern boys even temporarily."

The Educational News Bulletin is responsible for these statistics on southern corn. The state of Alabama is a cotton state, but both the soil and the boys seem well adapted to corn culture. Can Wisconsin do as well?"

EX-SENATOR CULLOM DIES THIS MORNING

ington than any one else whom I know."

As a ploughboy driving his father's oxen over the fresh prairie of Illinois he had known and talked with survivors of the revolution and on the rugged foundation of a life begun in pioneer hardships of a family of twelve children had built a career that took him to the Illinois legislature as a member; speaker of the assembly, two terms in the governor's chair, service in the national house of representatives, and thirty consecutive years in the United States senate.

His nearest living contemporary probably is "Uncle Joe" Cannon, whose senior he was some seven years by birth and some three years in national service.

Andrew Jackson was president of the United States when Mr. Cullom was born in 1829 down in the Elk Spring Valley of Kentucky, near the Cumberland where the Culloms of Maryland and the Coffeys of North Carolina, drifting westward with the tides of immigration that set in at the close of the revolution, founded their early home.

"During the year 1829," Mr. Cullom recently wrote to illustrate the epoch in which he began life, "The Crown of Great Britain descended from King George the Fourth to King William the Fourth, that reign passed away and I have lived to see the long reign of Victoria come and go; the reign of King Edward come and go and the accession of King George the Fifth, Charles the Fifth ruled in France."

The United Kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland had not yet a population of 24,000,000 all told. No man who has not served his country in some capacity in the Revolutionary war had been elevated to the presidency of the United States and this was the case until 1843."

Time and place in his own country were no less stirring, and his part in them was a marked one. Kentucky was a slave state at his birth, the controversy which was to hatch a great civil war.

process of incubation. In fact the Culloms moved to Illinois to be in a free state and Chicago then was a small village. The elder Cullom was then a friend of Lincoln's recommending the struggling backwoods lawyer to prospective clients. Young Cullom's first recollection of the future war president was under such circumstances. Scarcely seven years old, he followed his father to Springfield, Illinois, where he became city attorney of Springfield he launched upon a political career, which for a record of unbroken service, is unchallenged as exceeding that of any other American.

Among his first political experiences was the novelty of being elected and defeated at the same election. He was elected to the legislature and defeated as an elector on the Lincoln ticket. Then came the historic Lincoln and Douglas debates and Cullom's intimate association with Lincoln, whom he followed into the ranks of the republican party. He presided over the session of the Illinois house at which, after Fort Sumter had been fired upon, Stephen A. Douglas appeared and made his 'dramatic' plea for the preservation of the Union.

During the first of President Lincoln's second term, Mr. Cullom came to the national house of representatives and began a work which was practically interrupted only when he served two terms as governor of Illinois. Lincoln was assassinated soon after Cullom entered Washington life and the young legislator was a member of the committee that demanded the removal of President Johnson from office. Then, when the country began to recover from what seemed a final blow and the reconstruction set in with the thirty-ninth congress, Cullom was elected to the Illinois delegation, and with such colleagues in congress as Logan, Wentworth, Blaine, Conkling, and Hayes and Garfield, both of whom attained the presidency.

After six years in the house, during which he had seen the impeachment of Andrew Johnson and taken part in the making of a most critical period in American history, he returned to Illinois, vowing never again to take office, only to become speaker of the legislature and later governor. At the Philadelphia convention he placed Grant in nomination for his second term, in which he is said to be the strongest nominating speech ever delivered. It contained seventy-five words.

Cullom's career as a United States senator began in 1883, when he was elected as a republican and succeeded David Davis. His service in the senate chamber was an unbroken one for thirty years—five consecutive terms—a record excellently only by two other men, Alister of Iowa, and Senator Morrill of Vermont.

He entered the senate in 1883, a spry, active man of fifty-four; he left it in 1913 a fading, tottering man of eighty-four, but with brain still bright and active. He used to tell a story of how one day seeing Senator Vest, very old, feeble looking and dejected, he said to Senator Morrill who then was senior senator: "Go over and cheer Vest up a bit," whereat Morrill walked over, and slapping Vest on the shoulder, said "Cheer the old man; why're you noth in't with us?"

Down through the administrations of Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, he held important chairmanships when his party was in power, finally that of the foreign relations committee, since the Spanish war is comparatively fresh in the public mind. He was an ardent supporter of the peace treaties proposed by President Taft and which were so emasculated by the senate that they never were ratified.

During the last few years his friends had seen him slowly fading away in body and he became so feeble that his voice in the senate chamber was not heard farther than the clerk's desk. His term ended March 3, 1913, and he was appointed chairman of the Lincoln memorial commission created by congress to superintend the erection of the $2,000,000 memorial in this city. The one wish expressed on his death bed was that he might live to see the completion of the national memorial to his old friend. His members of fifty years of public service finished only a few months before his final illness overtook him, concluded after this manner:

"I have no great fear of death, except the natural dread of the physical pain which usually accompanies it. I certainly wish beyond any words I have power to express: that I could have greater assurance that there will be a reuniting with those who loved and those who have loved me in some future world; but from my reading of the scripture and even admitting that there is a hereafter, I cannot find any satisfactory evidence to warrant such a belief. Could I believe that I could meet the loved ones who have gone before, I do not know but that I should look forward with pleasure to the passing across. Not having this belief, I am quite content to stay where I am as long as I can, and finally, when old Charon appears to row me over the river Styx, I shall be ready to go."

STATE MAY HAVE LAWSUIT OVER A CAPITOL LAWSUIT CONCERNING MATERIAL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—The state of Wisconsin has brought suit against one of the bondholders of a construction company of the capitol alleging that he obtained the material named in the specifications. Secretary of State F. Porter and Assistant Attorney General W. W. Gilman have gone to Baltimore to present the claim. In one of the contracts bronze was to be used. Mr. Porter claims that the metal is not bronze and has summoned the aid of mineralogists to support his contention. The bonding company has gone into the hands of a receiver and the state is presenting its claim with others.

Bargains In Oriental Rugs:

Some people have an idea that when an Oriental Rug is offered at an apparently low price it must be a "bargain" not matter what the colorings and general condition of the rug may be. Experience has taught us, however, that unless an Oriental Rug is good, it is not a "bargain" at any price. In our opinion the best "bargains" in Oriental Rugs are good, reliable and artistic rugs at reasonable prices and that is the kind we are offering every day and which has made the Big Store the "Mecca" of genuine "bargain seekers" in Oriental Rugs.

ONE ROOM SCHOOL PLAN PRAISED BY SPEAKERS AT STATE CONFERENCE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—The one-room school building was highly commended here today by speakers at the opening sessions of the Fourth Wisconsin Country Life Conference which will continue through Friday.

Secretary of the State John S. Donald, of Mt. Horeb, is president, and C. J. Galpin, of Madison, is secretary of the conference.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"THE THING."

ACCORDING to history, slavery was abolished in the United States some time ago, but there are a great many kinds of slavery still flourishing in the land of the free and the home of the brave. And a great many kinds of slaves enduring a more unrelenting bondage than ever the black folks did.

And one of the largest and most pitiable classes of slaves, consists of those most unfortunate men and women who live all their lives in helpless bondage to "the thing."

What is "the thing"? Why, you know what "they do." Who are they? Nobody knows exactly, but apparently they must be a group of demigods, for what "they" say and what "they" do constitutes a sacred standard which is "the thing." On the altar of "the thing," if I may change the metaphor, hundreds of thousands of human beings sacrifice money, time, intelligence, comfort and happiness.

Both in the most important issues, and the most trivial details of their lives they must conform to the sacred standard. They eat by it and they marry by it; they dress by it; they walk and talk by it; and they die and are buried according to its formulas. And when they have been conventionally buried their successors in slavery select for their graves a rough-hewn granite monument because that is "the thing," in grave stones now-a-days.

At an ultra-fashionable hotel I was surprised to be served with cucumbers that were soft and lifeless instead of crisp and fresh as one expected to find them. I suggested to the friend who was dining with me that we ask for another serving. "Oh, no, don't," she said, "they are meant to be that way. That is the way they serve them now-a-days. It isn't the thing to have cucumbers crisp any more."

"Do you like them this way?" I asked.

"Why yes," she said, "I don't object to them. In fact I think I prefer them."

You see she was a well trained lady. She was accustomed to obedience that she actually had her senses under control and could like a food she didn't like if that were "the thing."

On another occasion I learned that one must not expect to have vinegar served on one's beads any longer, for that also is not "the thing" now-a-days. At all "the best houses" they serve them with salt and pepper.

A friend of mine is struggling through a popular novel for which it is evident she has no particular liking. "Why do you read it?" I asked. "Oh, one must know about these things if one wants to keep up," she said, "loftily."

This is a queer old world, and one of the queerest things about it is this self-imposed serfdom. Life is so much simpler and happier when we try—with all due respect to the rights and privileges of others—to be ourselves and please ourselves. Have the courage to think for yourself and act accordingly and you will stop up one of the biggest happiness leaks in your system.

milk, a pinch of soda and salt and white pepper to taste. Pour into greased muffin pans; set these in an outer pan of boiling water and bake until the egg is set. Turn the muffins out upon a platter and pour a rich brown sauce around them.

Egg Mince—Mix together two cupsful of minced cold lamb, chicken or veal, one cupful of chopped ham and one cupful of fine bread crumbs. Moisten thoroughly with well-seasoned soup stock. Turn into a greased bake dish and set in the oven until heated through. Break upon the top of the mince as many eggs as will lie side by side on it, sprinkle with salt and pepper, return to the oven and bake until the whites are set and firm. Send to the table in a pudding dish.

Potato Croquettes—Work to a paste two cupsful of mashed potatoes and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Season with salt and pepper and beat light with a raw egg. Form into balls or croquettes; roll in egg and then in cracker dust; let them stand on a flat surface until stiff and fry in deep boiling fat. Drain off every drop of fat and serve hot.

Gold Cake—Cream together a cupful of butter and two cupsful of sugar. When well blended stir in the beaten yolks of four eggs and a scant cupful of milk. Now add, gradually, enough prepared flour to make a good batter, and, at the last, the juice and grated rind of one orange. Turn into a greased tin and bake until a straw comes out clean from the thickest part of the loaf. Frost with an icing made by beating a cupful of powdered sugar into the unbeaten white of one egg. When beat and smooth add a teaspoonful of orange juice and a tablespoonful of orange peel.

WHAT IS OLD AGE?

Some Younger at 65 Than Others Are at 40 Years.

Old age is not marked by years, but by the stiffened frame, the hardened tissues and arteries.

So many people whom you meet about the time they reach 40 begin by saying "I can't do this, and I can't do that, because I'm getting old now." They begin to act old, feel old and they are older in appearance than many who are much more advanced in years.

When you begin to feel old, when your energy begins to fail build yourself up with our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It is a wonderful blood-maker and strengthener.

H. C. Klyce of Corinth, Miss., says: "I am 75 years old and my blood was very poor. I was in a rundown condition and felt that I must have a tonic. Vinol was recommended and it built up my strength until I felt as strong and well as ever."

Thousands of old people have found in Vinol just the medicine they need to build up the feeble, weakened system and create strength. If it fails, we return your money. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis.

Women Worth While

MRS. WILLIAM H. MURRAY.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.) ANY woman who hails from Tishomingo, Oklahoma, ought to be an Indian princess, if she isn't. She ought to have hair black as a raven's wing, and the swarthy complexion of her race. She should be haughty, tactful and stoical by turns. And as for beads, one would expect her to wear ropes of them. That is, if there's anything in a name. For the name Tishomingo has a Hawsaw-Mincho-ha-Lahing-Water sound that suggests all the picturesque associated in the popular imagination with the Indian race.

"But we Indians," protests Mrs. William H. Murray, wife of Representative Murray of Tishomingo, "are not at all like what you picture us to be. You get your idea of the Indian mainly from the moving picture show, which depicts a race of primitive creatures in war paint and feathers."

"I am an Indian myself—a member of the Chickasaw tribe. I was educated at a school for Indian girls. We dressed, studied and learned just as do any other girls. Later I taught a school of Indian children—not one of whom could speak English at the beginning of the term. These children were just like any others, except that they were not white. They were disciplined, gentle in manner and timid, as the Indian child usually is. Yes, I am sorry to shatter the Easterner's illusions regarding the Indian of today, but truthfulness compels me to say he is no longer primitive. He is very much like everybody else in education, in manner and in dress."

Mrs. Murray is one-eighth Indian. At her home in Washington she has a number of interesting Indian relics in the form of old flags carried by the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes in fights in which they assisted the whites, tomahawks, medals and most treasured of all, the very same pipe which the honored Sequoia is said to have smoked.

Representative and Mrs. Murray have five children. The eldest boy, Massena, is called after Napoleon Bonaparte's marshal by that name. The others are Johnston, William Henry, a daughter, Jean, and Burbank, named for the famous Luther Burbank of California. The children attend public school at their capital where their parents have resided only a few months. They are not in love with city life. They pronounce it a poor sort of life, when he entered the barracks at Christmas time and in which a safe and sane Fourth of July has been instituted, a fact which points to their maternal ancestry and which goes to prove the truth of the old saying that all boys are Indians.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Is it hard for a child to learn, if my reader be a mother her answer will instantly, emphatic. "It is not; they demonstrate before their first birthday their ability, their desire to learn."

You can take a child before it is one year old and start to train it. This without any strain on the delicate machinery of the little child's mind or body. However, to be a good teacher you yourself must be a good scholar, for no man can be a good general who has not been a good soldier.

If you cannot control your own temper think you that you can control the temper of your little child? If you cannot be calm, self-possessed, can you make your little child so? You answer? Keeping ever in mind that what you are today your child is going to be tomorrow. Yes! that is a truism you will do well to retain in your memory.

A child is like a cake of wax in the moulder's hand. The moulder is the scholar. It is for her to say what her child shall be; how she shall mould the wonderful wax that the Great Sculptor has intrusted to her act in a manner that will bring credit on themselves and us.

Say what you will, the child is trained up in the way he or she should go is slow to depart from it. Now I know you can come back at me with many, many instances where children of splendid parents went wrong—white. But the greater per cent of young folks that do go across the line are children of parents who took their responsibilities as parents very lightly indeed.

One does not need wealth to be qualified as a good parent; often the lack of it is a greater inducement for the parent to train his children up in the way they should go. The people of means sometimes think money will cover all misdemeanors. I say some people of means. Not all! No! Some of the best parents in the world are the ones of means; the ones who realize their responsibilities and live up to them.

Your financial rating is not the correct criterion of your ability as a parent. Are you a good parent?

MISSOURI SUFFRAGETTES WILL ORGANIZE CAMPAIGNS TO WIN BALLOT RIGHTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Columbia, Mo., Jan. 28.—With suffrage to east of them and enfranchise to west of them, Missouri suffragettes are today organizing a campaign which they expect will secure "Votes for Missouri women" and make a "white strip" on the equal suffrage map from Indiana to Utah. Initiative petitions for a vote suffrage amendment to the constitution today are being circulated in two-thirds of the congressional districts of the state and more than half of the 23,000 signatures have already been secured, according to Mrs. Walter McNab Miller of Columbia, Mo., president of the Missouri Equal Suffrage Association. "Many people have the wrong idea of woman suffrage," said Mrs. Miller. "Missouri women are not going into this campaign with any feeling of antagonism. We feel that the men have too much to do. We have been asking our husbands in the past to carry the living load at the same time carry all the burden of public life."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

A clean sponge dampened ever so slightly removes dust and dirt from felt hats and velvet coat collars better than a brush broom.

To stone raisins easily heat them thoroughly in the oven, preferably on an enamel plate, as it retains the heat. The stones then come away quite easily and without waste.

Pure glycerine will cleanse a cut, and also cause it to heal quickly.

A letter sealed with the white of an egg can never be steamed or melted. Cook dumplings successfully place the stew in a baker or large basin, drop the dumplings on top in small spoonfuls and bake in a hot oven 10 or 15 minutes. They will be sure to be light and delicious.

THE TABLE.

Spinach Souffle—Boil the spinach and chop fine. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs, a tablespoonful of melted butter and salt to taste. Set this mixture away to cool. When cold, beat into it a half-gill of cream and the frothed whites of three eggs. Turn into a buttered baking-dish, and bake quickly in a hot oven to a light brown. Serve as soon as it is removed from the oven.

Pink Pudding—Soak a package of gelatine for an hour in a cupful of cold water. Mash a pint of ripe strawberries and turn upon them a cupful of granulated sugar. Pour a pint of boiling water upon the gelatine, and stir over the fire mashed berries, and strain through coarse muslin. When the jelly is very cold whip the whites of five eggs to a stiff meringue and beat the jelly into them. Turn into a mold and set in ice to form. Serve with whipped cream.

Found Cake Trifle—Cut a pound cake and spread each slice thickly with raspberry jam. Lay on a flat dish and heap on each slice a great spoonful of meringue made by whipping the whites of four eggs stiff, then adding sugar and currant jelly to taste, and beating into a pink mass. Trim with cream.

Egg Timbales—Beat six eggs light and stir into them a half pint of rich cream.

QUESTION ARISES DO LOCAL PEOPLE TANGO CORRECTLY?

Majority of Gliders Can See No Difference From Old Tango and Its Refined Stage.

Dancing in Janesville is getting to be getting quite an art, from the artistic standpoint as well as from the mere pleasure of enjoying the activity. There are some gliders who stand out above others, as being more clever with their feet, and more graceful in their moves. But the real question that is causing such a comment at the dances held in this city, is, Do the Janesville people dance the tango correctly?

As a matter of fact, the tango, as danced in this city is nothing more than a slow walk, with a little bend now and then at the knees. Some do not even believe in bending their knees, and walk around as stalwart as possible, thus causing that same question to be asked over and over again. And then there are comments by what the tango is, and how it should be danced.

When the dance first originated, people, not only in this city, but in every city and country, took the attitude that the dance was unfit for any body to participate in. They considered it a refined tango. This refined tango was started with a great deal of satisfaction and enthusiasm. Parents then allowed their children to attend the parties, and to dance the refined tango.

And there was a joke attached to the dancing of the old and refined tango. The only change in the old and new stage was a hint to the men regarding the correct form of holding the girl. The left arm of the man should be in the same position as if he were going to dance the two-step or waltz, was the idea. And that was what the people kicked about at all. They objected to the close dancing.

When the news of the change in the dance reached this city, the clever gliders immediately removed their left arm from about the girl's waist, and the visitors appeared satisfied that the dance was being danced correctly. Well, the dance, whatever you would call it, might have been danced properly, but was it the correct tango?

The original tango and the refined tango are about the same. There is no slow walk, nor a bend at the knees, at an angle of perhaps forty-five degrees, but there is that beautiful swing, which carries a couple from one end of the floor to the other. The body is moved in a very graceful position, very much being exerted, and by the time the dance is completed, the couple is fairly exhausted.

It was not long after the tango was revised that the famous dreamy hesitation waltz became the rage in this city. By that time the tango was a forgotten pleasure. Today, however, the tango is again the popular dance, and in many cases there are couples who, if asked to dance the two-step or waltz, would refuse attempting to try it, after dancing the tango so continuously.

The same question still stares the dancers in the face: Am I doing the tango right? A combination of the hesitation and tango, as danced in this city at times, is oftentimes a subject for criticism. Of course, the real fact of the matter is, there are many people who say they hesitate on the tango.

WELL KNOWN ORFORD FARMER FALLS DEAD

Richard Leng Passes Away Very Suddenly at His Home Tuesday Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Orfordville, Wis., Jan. 28.—Richard Leng, aged 55 years, a life-long resident of Orfordville, fell dead at his home here Tuesday afternoon about five-thirty o'clock. Heart failure was the cause of his death. Mr. Leng has been enjoying his usual health of late and only yesterday afternoon paid a visit to his farm two miles west of this village. It was shortly after his return that he was stricken. Mr. Leng retired from his farm about two years ago and moved to the village to reside. Besides a wife he leaves six children: Mrs. Frank Rossier of Center, Mrs. Paul Jensen and Miss Sadie Leng of Orfordville, Frank Leng of Edgerton and Charles and George Leng of this place.

Orfordville, Jan. 28.—W. T. Green shipped one of his choice Duroc Jersey hogs to parties in Monticello on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. W. F. Gavey, who has been visiting at Rockford, Ill., for the past few days returned home on Tuesday. The executive committee of the Lecture and Entertainment Course received word on Tuesday morning that the next number of the series would be on the evening of the fourth of February. This will be a lecture by Charles Plattenburg. Mr. Plattenburg was first booked to open the course about Christmas time but that date was cancelled. STOP, MOTHER! IT'S CRUEL TO FORCE OIL OR CALOMEL INTO SICK CHILD'S STOMACH

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels. Children love it.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "physic" that mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children—It's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need clearing give "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow. It should be the first remedy given as it always does good, never any harm.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

HAIR GREW 4 INCHES IN A FEW WEEKS

A St. Louis Lady Increased the Length of Her Hair Four Inches in a Few Weeks With This Simple Home Recipe.

A well-known St. Louis lady, after using a simple recipe on her hair which she found at home, made the following statement: "Without exaggeration, my hair has grown four or five inches." The recipe she used is as follows, and any lady or gentleman can mix it at home: To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and a small quantity of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the tips of the fingers. It not only promotes the growth of the hair, but removes dandruff, scalp humors and prevents the hair from falling out.

It darkens streaked, faded gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. These ingredients can be obtained from any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home.

A Plain Business Proposition

Can you afford to go on suffering from biliousness, sleeplessness, heart flutter and various other troubles so often brought on by coffee drinking, just because you like coffee?

Thousands have quit coffee and are using Postum, and to their joy find that the annoying coffee troubles have quickly disappeared. Not only that, but they find Postum a delightful beverage, with a rich flavour resembling that of Old Gov't Java.

Postum, unlike coffee, contains no caffeine nor other drug. Made only from clean hard wheat, with a small per cent of New Orleans molasses, it is a pure, wholesome food drink which can be freely enjoyed with benefit by all the family.

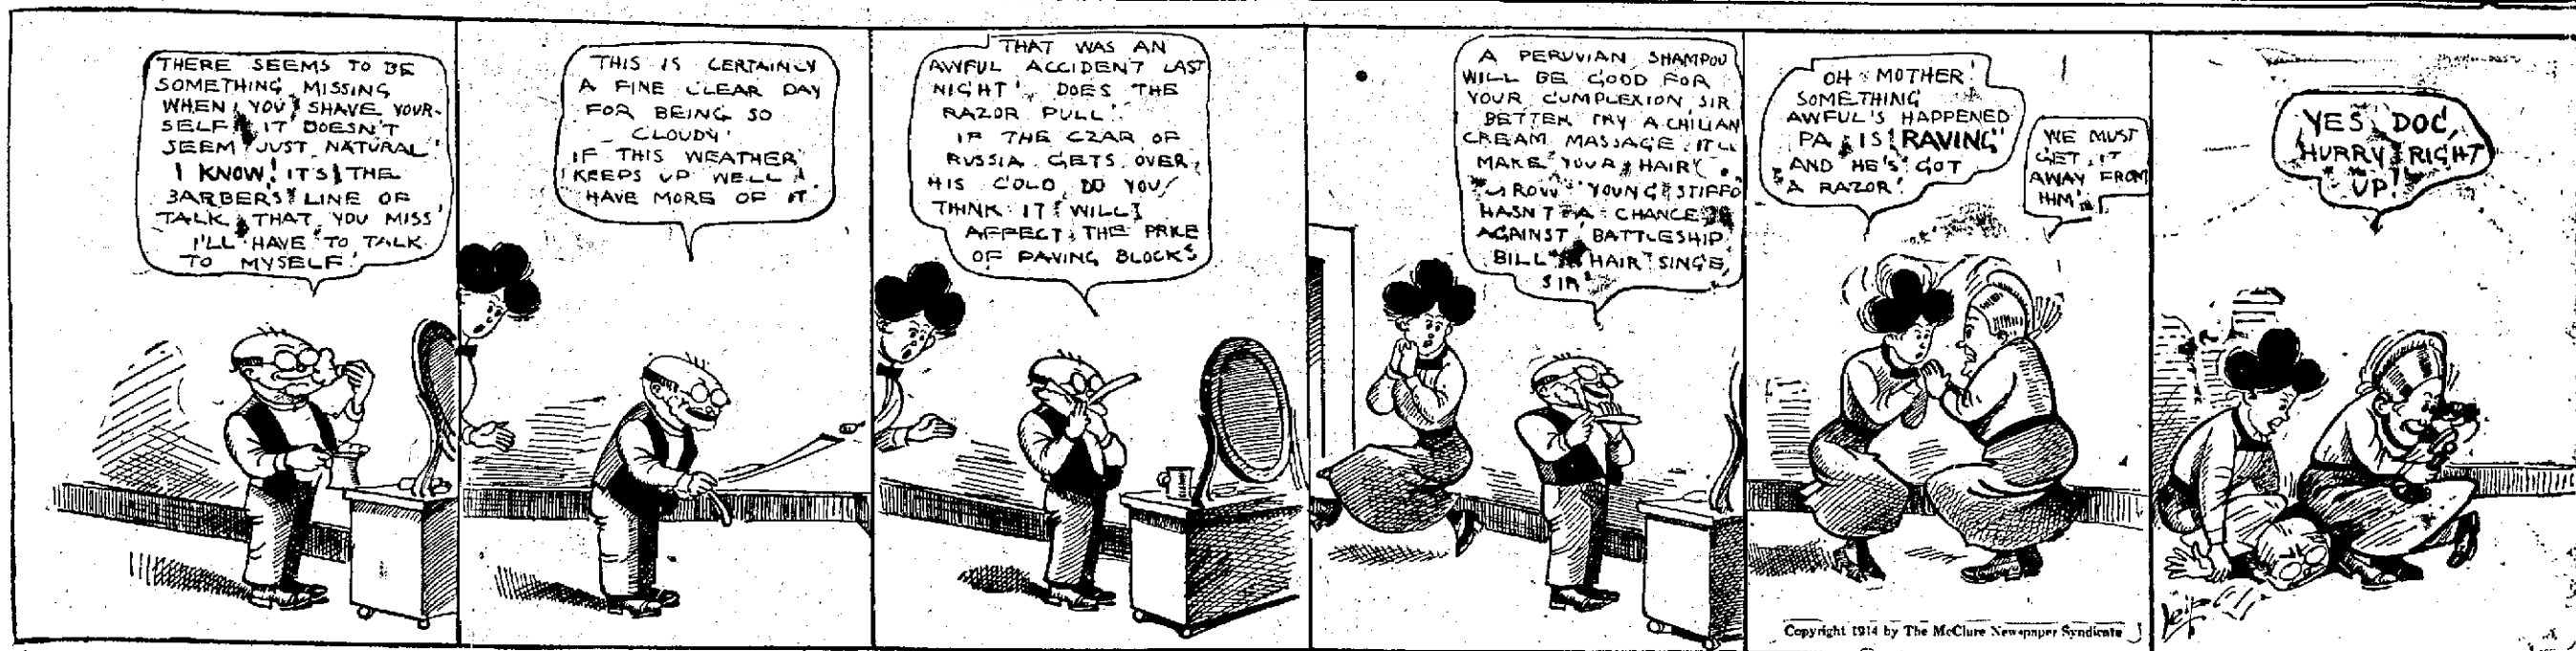

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be boiled 15 to 20 minutes. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A scant teaspoonful to each cup of hot water dissolves instantly.

The convenience of Instant Postum is apparent. But, when prepared according to directions both kinds are exactly the same. The cost per cup is about the same.

—Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

If coffee don't agree, try POSTUM

Broadway Jones

From the Play of George M. Cohan

This did not impress or interest him.

"You say the young fellow's stopping at the Grand?"

"Yes."

"Well, nobody here knows anything about it."

"I believe he registered under another name." She could have bitten off her tongue for letting this slip out.

Instantly the man assumed that this confirmed his most unfavorable prognostications. "Ah, ha! Well, what did he do that for?"

"How should I know?"

"Well," he shouted, "I guess I do! It's because he is a sneak! He knows it's a rotten thing he's doing and he's afraid of the consequences." He strode up and down the room in deep and heavy thought. "The men are not in a very good temper, and you mark my words, there'll be the devil to pay around here before this day's over unless we get some satisfaction and find out exactly what he intends to do!"

Josie looked at him with cold and angry eyes. For an instant she had been frightened. She had got the better of her fear now, and in her voice were both contempt and warning. "I wouldn't talk like that, if I were you, Higgins!"

He approached her threateningly. "Oh, you're on their side, are you? I thought so!"

Again he went close to her, almost as if he meant to do her some violence. His face was black with rage, his fists were clenched.

"I never did believe in you. I told the men this morning. For all we know, you've been working for the interests of the trust all the time!"

Her wrath was boiling fiercely now, and she showed the stuff of which she was made. She went closer still to Higgins, never wavering; giving back an inch, although he towered above her, shaking with wrath, and worked his clenching fingers ominously.

"That will be 'about' enough now, Higgins; you get out of this office."

"I'd like to see anybody try to put me out till I'm ready to go!" he shouted.

To his amazement and to hers, it now developed that they had had a listener. An unexcited voice spoke from one side.

"Good morning, Miss Richards."

She whirled, recognizing instantly the tones. "Good morning, Mr. Jones."

Higgins stood there speechless, gazing at the newcomer with dropping jaw. Jackson waited not a second after he had greeted Josie, but marched up to the belligerent foreman and stood facing him, small but determined, not six inches from the powerful, red-shirted figure.

Instantly the foreman's manner changed. From the bully he became the fawn. "Oh, hello, Mr. Jones! I didn't know you were in town."

"Yes, you did," said Jackson slowly, coldly. "Miss Richards just told you. I've been standing out there listening to what you had to say. I remember you, Higgins. The only good thing I remember of you was that you were funny when you had cramps in the swimming hole. You always were a grouch and forever nosing in other people's affairs. Now, I want to tell you something. This plant belongs to me, and it's nobody's business whether I keep it, or sell it, or give it away. Do you understand?"

"Well," said Higgins, half in apology, half dully, "the men asked me to come here and get the information."

"They didn't ask you to come here and insult this girl, did they? Now, I'll put you out of the office, and throw you out of the plant, and drive you out of the town if I hear any more red-fire talk out of you."

He paused, and Higgins stood, quite humbled.

"The trust isn't going to buy this plant," Broadway continued, while not only Higgins, but Josie, gazed at him intently, gratefully, startled by the overwhelmingly good news, "for the simple reason that it isn't for sale, and you can go and tell the men I said so." Higgins now was much abashed. "I'm sorry I was hasty, Mr. Jones. I didn't mean to lose my temper."

"You don't want to lose your job, do you?"

"No, sir."

"Then go on; get out of here."

"Yes, sir." The big workman turned to Josie. "I hope you'll forgive me, Miss Richards. I know I've got a rotten disposition, but my heart's in the right place."

"I understand," said Josie, who had known him all her life.

"I'll tell the men what you said, Mr. Jones," he said to his employer—that employer who had, in the past, employed no one more important than a butler, a chauffeur, a Jap cook, or, temporarily, a waiter or a bellboy. It gave Broadway quite a little shock. "Gosh! What a relief it will be to them all! It's made a different man out of me already."

To their amazement he broke down, blubbering like a mammoth child.

"Well, what are you crying about?" said Jackson, utterly nonplussed.

"Because I'm happy," said the contradictory Higgins. "There'll be others to cry outside. You don't know what it means to us—it saves our homes and families, too, maybe." With that and still intently blubbering, he left them.

"Can you beat that?" asked Broadway, turning back to Josie. "He's a nice, cheerful little fellow! I'd like to be around him a while!"

CHAPTER X

There was another than the foreman who was happier than ordinary words would have expressed, now that Jackson Jones had stated, with what seemed to be finality, that he intended to continue at the business which had made his fortune and had made Janesville. But Josie felt a strange need for reserve in her young employer's presence, a need which she had not felt the night before and one which she could not explain.

His impulse was to rush into extravagance of praise after he had sent the foreman out into the works to tell the men that he should not sell his patrimony to the trust, but for some reason which she would have found it difficult to explain fully she said not a word about it. Instead, she turned to him with matter-of-fact expression and the words of commonplace occasions.

"Did you have a good night's rest?"

He felt like saying something full of emphasis, whether in access of joy or sorrow he was not certain, but he knew that any words which he could use to her would be inadequate to furnish him relief, and so he left her commonplace question with a thrill of real relief.

"My back is broken," he said with an expressive grimace and a writhe.

"Who named that hotel?"

"The Grand?"

He nodded with another serio-comic facial antic.

She laughed. "Is it as bad as that?"

"There are men in prison for doing less than running a hotel like that!"

Almost he made the revelation of their startling midnight wanderings, but caught himself in time.

"Why don't you open your uncle's home?"

"My uncle's home?" he said, a little startled.

He had not thought of that. The suggestion probably did more to drive home definitely to his inner mind the true significance of his decision to take up the business than anything which had previously occurred. His uncle's home!

After his father's death it had been his home; it had been the only semblance of a home which he remembered, and his memories of it were harsh enough in some details almost repellent. His uncle had been hard; he had had but little understanding of boy nature; the house had been a sort of prison from which he could escape at intervals each day.

He had not even thought of opening it; it never had occurred to him that he could ever live another day of his life there.

But, now she spoke of it, why not? The place was grim, old-fashioned, inhospitable, forbidding, as so many old New England houses are, and as so many more New England houses were ten years ago; but that atmosphere was more that of its occupant than that of the old place itself. It must have been a joyous and free-minded Jones who chose the site for it, for it was very beautiful; it must have been an artist Jones who chose the plans for it, for its design was of that beautiful, pure old colonial which (barring skyscrapers) is the only architectural merit America has yet originated, and than which nothing is more true.

She nodded. She was rather glad to feel that it was right for her to nod. She would have shrunk from revelations of the sorrow which would certainly have filled her heart if it had transpired, now, that Broadway was not to remain in Janesville. She even shrank from an acknowledgment of this in her own heart.

"The business will need your attention," she said gravely.

He waved a hand which he tried to make appear as if dispensing privileges, but which, he knew, seemed more that of a chinker.

"Go right on with the business. Don't pay any attention to me."

She looked at him very gravely. Then, dropping her eyes, she took some papers from the desk, went to a filing cabinet, deposited them with care in their allotted places, and slowly went back to her desk. As she returned she did not again raise her eyes to his.

"Have you thought of what we talked about last night?" she asked.

She made him most uncomfortable. He had begun to wonder, for the first time in his life, if, possibly, he did not have a conscience. He had never taken any obligation very seriously; suddenly it seemed necessary for him to consider many things with solemn, pondering mind. He did not like it. It distinctly made him nervous. What was the use of being heir to all his uncle's property if riches brought the very thing which he had thought they might preserve him from—dull care?

Had he thought of what she had said last night? He had thought of little else! Had that train of thought been started by any human being other than herself, he would have bitterly resented the intrusion; discomfort it had caused him. Even now his voice was peevish when he answered:

"Have I thought of it! All I dreamed about last night was poverty stricken families crying for their food. Thousands of men, women and children chased me through the streets, out of the town and into a wild forest—where
